

Be a part of the next generation of access talent

Kickstart your career in inclusive environments with the CAE Pathways programme

If you're an 18-30 year old disabled Londoner, the CAE Pathways programme from the Centre of Accessible Environments will give you the knowledge, skills and confidence for a career in inclusive environments and access.

You will receive 22 days of training - delivered over 12 months - on topics like the principles of inclusive design, access auditing, website accessibility, designing for neurodiversity and more. You'll also get hands-on experience from shadowing an access professional.

CAE is Habinteg Housing Association's expert training and consultancy team.

Get a taste of CAE Pathways programme

The CAE Pathways programme is the ideal starting ground for anyone wanting to improve access for disabled people and create a more inclusive world. Come along to our virtual taster session on 24 July, and you'll get a chance to find out more about the programme, meet the project team and hear from people already working in the inclusion and access field.

You can find out more about the programme which starts in October 2020, and book your place at our virtual taster session by visiting:
