

Be a part of the next generation of access talent

If you're an 18-30 year old disabled Londoner, the Centre of Accessible Environments (CAE) Pathways Academy will give you the knowledge, skills and confidence, for a career in inclusive environments and access.

You'll receive 22 days of training - delivered over 12 months – on topics like the principles of inclusive design, access auditing, website accessibility, designing for neurodiversity and more. You'll also get hands-on experience from shadowing an access professional.

Sign up now to our virtual taster session

Come along to our virtual taster session on 29 June or 27 July, and you'll get a chance to find out more about the programme, meet the project team and hear from people already working in the inclusion and access field.

You can find out more about the programme which starts in October 2021, and book your place at our virtual taster session by visiting cae.org.uk/pathways

"It's a rich course with useful content and exercises... I'd like to think that I can use the skills I've learnt in Pathways in any future role I work in..."

Agne Verescagina, Pathways Academy student (2020-21)
